

King of Gastro

The Weir

As it celebrates its second anniversary, The Weir in Brentford continues to take the gastro pub experience to a higher plain, offering fine dining to its customers

Far away from the 'spit & sawdust' traditional image of the gastro pub, the difference is felt as soon as you walk in, with its chic furnishings, decoration and relaxed ambience. The Weir offers a bar with a wide choice of European beers, extensive wine and champagne list and real ales.

The current menu includes some of The Weir's signature dishes, such as their Monkfish skewer and Chateaubriand served on a hot stone as well foie gras terrine, Rosemary saddle of lamb, and pan-fried Seabass. The frequently changing menu ensures that only fresh seasonal produce is used and they work closely with their suppliers to offer customers the best quality at the keenest prices. Head Chef, Christian Pezet, has worked in Michelin-star rated restaurants and revels in the challenge of providing the same high quality dishes in a far more demanding environment.

The owners take a hands-on approach to the business and, with fifteen years' in hospitality, they are constantly looking to provide a complete dining-out experience; not just the à la carte menu but interesting bar snacks, currently including a mezze platter for two and a pint of shrimp served with a selection of sauces.

They have just launched a private dining option where the chef works with the customer to produce a tailored dinner party menu. A specially designated area allows an intimate dining experience with the full attention of a senior waiter to serve and assist with wine selection.

The Weir is set on the river, and the non-smoking dining room allows views onto the garden and water. In the summer they provide private al fresco dining on the water's edge.

With Christmas around the corner The Weir has published its Christmas menus including a three-course meal, a buffet and a six-course tasting menu and are now taking festive bookings.

The Weir will be closed on Christmas Day and will re-open on the 31st December for those looking to enjoy a less frantic New Year's Eve, including candle-lit dining, their six-course tasting menu, Champagne and fireworks at midnight.
